One Step Closer

The משל:

Once upon a time, there was a family. One day, the mother told her son that there's a surprise on top of a mountain. "It will take a few hours to get there, but it's worth it!" said his mother. "I will be waiting there for you." So the young man set out for the mountain. After an hour or two, he decided to take a break. Then, he saw a few people walking by, and he joined their conversation. "Why are you here?" one of the men asked him. (He put his hand on his forehead). "Oh yeah!" he exclaimed. "I'm here because there is a surprise on that mountain over there." He pointed to a mountain a few miles north.

A few minutes later, he continued on his journey. An hour later he made up his mind. "I will go to the nearest village and stay there, for the rest of my life," he said to himself.

Just then, a man came to him and said, "Your parents are still waiting for you. I am their messenger." So he continued on his journey with the messenger encouraging him. It was starting to get dark. Suddenly, the young man exclaimed, "Enough is enough! I am too tired to continue this journey, it will probably never end. It is getting dark, and I am scared!" The messenger got two torches of light, "Just put one foot in front of the other," he said. The young man took 2 steps. "Uch," he groaned. "It's no point, nothing happened, I'm still in the same spot!" "Take ten more steps and you will see that you are moving." said the messenger. "Follow me and you will see that we will get there eventually." Suddenly, the mountain came into view. "We're here," the young man said breathlessly. "Finally."

The המשל:

The boy is ישראל. The messenger is the Rebbe. The torches are the Torah. The mountain is Moshiach. The surprise is the בית המקדש.

A message from Mrs. Friedland

I am very excited to announce the new multiplication review program for our fourth and fifth graders. Each week we will work on a different multiplication fact family. At the end of our program, we will have a major inter-grade BEE. I look forward to seeing our girls master these facts as they become more proficient in their math skills.

Science

After learning about meteorologist who predict the weather we made our very own manometers that show us the wind speed and wind direction.

Dear Parents and Students,

I am excited to announce that we are starting a new multiplication review program for our fourth and fifth graders. Each week the girls will review a multiplication fact family and practice during class time.

Each girl will also receive a set of multiplication flashcards to practice with at home. At the end of our eight week program we will have an inter-grade "BEE".

Girls will be rewarded for their consistent participation and success.

I look forward to strengthening this vital skill and bringing excitement to our math department.

Fondly, Mrs. Friedland
