FROM the MENAHEL

Dear Parents,

This week marks the half-point of the school year. At this point, we pause and thank Hashem for getting us here. We thank the Rebbies and teachers who have developed a relationship with their students and are working with each student to help them grow in their Yiddishkeit and their ability to learn Torah.

We thank the administrative staff for being there daily to support us with all our needs. From the endless stream of copies and booklets, phone calls, and minor injuries, they are always ready to help. Thank you Rabbi Brawer and the back office for their unwavering commitment to cheder at all hours and meeting all challenges.

And must of all, thank you dear parents for your tireless dedication to your children's growth, your patience in supporting us in our educational endeavors and your encouragement to always reach for greater heights.

We hope you can spend a few precious moments with your children, building your relationships and treating them to special quality time. We hope you take the opportunity to discuss the grades on their report cards and set them up for continued success at cheder.

We will reflect on our educational goals, what goals have been met and where we have to realign to meet our academic and spiritual goals. We make sure to stay close to our shlichus modeling and delivering the Rebbe's teachings and lessons.

Thank you to the PTA for their commitment to cheder and for boosting cheder morale on a consistent basis. Parent interest and involvement in the cheder intricacies often leads to an enhanced experience for the children. That, my friends, is our shared goal.

Wishing you a musical and pleasant Shabbos,

Rabbi Kaplan

STUDENTS OF THE WEEK

aPEEKatOUR WEEK

The boys were introduced to the Parts of Speech, Nouns and wrote a list of words for each category, Person, Place and Thing. Using the list, we then played a fun game of bingo. Also, we read a poem about snow and highlighted the nouns. I am so proud of the amazing marks of the last math test. Now, we are learning to find the difference/ subtraction with borrowing. A hint to remember, number on top is more no need to stop. Number on the floor is more, go next door and get ten more. With daily practice, the boys are getting better at it. We read a story about a king who could request three wishes come true. The boys had one wish that they longed for. The coming of Moshiach! Boy do they have it right! Wishing all a nice midwinter break! Gut shabbos!

Mrs. Levin- Grade 2A

If you heard loud cheers emanating from class 3A, never fear: we are busy playing Multiplication BINGO! Now that we have completed all the times tables, we were able to play, not one, but TWO different types of BINGO to help hone our multiplication skills. Mrs. Eckstein even bought prizes for the winners, but in reality, a fun time was had by all. Did you say you heard MORE loud cheers? Well, that must have been our class enjoying our Science experiments on Thursday. We have completed learning four of the five Senses, so lekoved Tu BeShvat, Mrs. Eckstein brought in different things to smell and taste. Every boy got the opportunity to taste either salt, sugar or both! Some boys had to taste apple juice, others smelled besomim, cinnamon, and even vinegar! Then every boy received apple slices, and we experimented to see if and how the sense of smell changes the way a food tastes. We ended off the week with treats of sweet milk chocolate, as well as stories about a science experiment gone awry. In Wordly Wise/Reading we read a passage about how to be a successful magician; keep talking and keep the audience laughing, so they don't see your sleight of hand. May we all continue to learn and serve H-shem with joy and laughter. Have a wonderful Shabbos!
